Love, everybody agrees, is the foundation of the happy home. On this point the letters of Evening World readers voice a unanimous opinion. But in the communications which I have received, so far, no mention has been made of a rare and more difficult quality—that of loyalty.

Perhaps, loyalty is an old-fashioned virtue. Certainly it has no standing in the court of the "new morality." It seems a poor, pitiful, decrepit thing to the radicals of sex. But any home in which loyalty is not the supreme ideal of husband and wife is predestined to failure.

Men are perhaps more loyal than women in little things. A husband is not nearly so apt to discuss his wife's failings with another man as his wife is to entertain the next door neighbor with the story of her marital unhappiness. But I think no man will dispute that women are more loyal of action if less discreet of speech. And so long as this disparity of conduct exists and continues there will be many unhappy homes and more unhappy women.

Unfortunately many rather intelligent women lend ear to the specious plea that this difference in loyalty to the fundamental ideal of marriage is basic and ineradicable. They accept man's view that he is the lesser sin because his is the lesser penalty for himself and for the race. Yet it would be as reasonable to agree that a murderer who escapes punishment for his crime is less guilty than the man who pays the full penalty of the law.

If it is impossible for man to accord woman that loyalty in marriage which he expects from her, why perpetrate a spiritual swindle by making the same vows? Why keep a "joker" in the marriage contract which practically nullifies the spirit and intent? I do not mean that all men or even the majority of men look upon the promise of fidelity as a joke. But such a large number of men do that two-thirds of the divorces in the United States are granted to women. And the divorces granted do not represent anything like the number which would be granted if sought by women who sometimes from a mistaken spirit of self-immolation, sometimes merely

SAVED FROM DEATH, HE DENIES ATTEMPT TO COMMIT SUICIDE

F. B. Huette Long Parted From Wife—He Is Prisoner in Bellevue.

Frank B. Huette, whose wife, Francis Huette, was prominent on the stage twenty years ago, and whose daughter, Gladys Huette, will take the part of Beth in "Little Women," which will open to-day in the Playhouse, was taken to Bellevue Hospital a prisoner last night on a charge of attempted suicide.

Huette is President of the United Press News Association at No. 84 Broadway, and has been living at No. 10 West Twenty-second street. His family, which consists of his wife and two sons, Frank Jr. and Donald C., and his daughter, live at No. 113 East Fourth street, near Kings Highway, Brooklyn.

Donald said to-day that his father and mother had not been living together for five years, although their relations were cordial. He said his mother had just been taken to Post-Graduate Hospital in Manhattan, suffering from a serious heart complaint and that his father's alleged attempt at suicide must be kept from her.

When found last night Huette was unconscious on the floor of his room. By his side lay a rubber tube. He denied that he had tried to kill himself and said he would explain the presence of the tube when he was arraigned in court.

Victim of Trolley Car Is Dead. William Heeley, who was struck by a Lexington avenue surface car while crossing Sixty-ninth street last evening, died to-day in Presbyterian hospital of internal injuries. Heeley was forty-two years old and lived at No. 172 East Ninety-sixth street.

Ticking—the minutes away until Thursday's Golden Special in Men's and Women's Standard American Watches

Tomorrow is watch day! 14-karat gold watches will be offered for less than in all the store's history—watches for both men and women.

Also gold-filled watches, the cases guaranteed for twenty years with the standard reliable movements—almost as rarely found under-price.

Everything is new and fine about them. They are exactly what your wisest neighbors selected yesterday or will choose the day after tomorrow—unless they see this notice first.

Men's watches come in the new models; they have the narrow line of knurling, also the half baccine or either plain polished, or engraved and engine turned cases. The women's have the new antique bow and the revolving pendant caseful for chateleine pins, and also come with plain or engine turned cases. All are new, in perfect condition, with all the excellent time-keeping qualities for which the Waltham, Elgin and Illinois watches are noted.

Each watch will be kept in running order by us for one year—regulated if necessary—without charge. Engraving free.

Men's Gold-Filled Watches—10-karat gold filled 20-year cases, plain polished or engine turned. $8.50, instead of $10.75

Waltham or Elgin movement, seven jewels, open-faced, thin model. $11.25, instead of $13.50

Waltham or Elgin movement, hunting case. $9.25, instead of $12.50

Illinois movement, 11-jewel, open-faced, thin model. $11.75, instead of $15

Illinois movement, 11-jewel, hunting case.

When a woman's solid gold watch can be had at $13.50, and a man's solid gold watch can be had at $16.50, why not choose them for the Christmas, New Year or graduation gift NOW?

Of course, not one of these watches can be duplicated at these prices after this lot is sold.
